

Wearever's Top 20 Senior Blogs of 2020

November 20, 2020

Lifestyle

With mandated lockdowns and working from home, our Wearever employees have had some extra time on their hands this year. With that extra time, we have been finding new hobbies, listening to more podcasts, and discovering new blogs. We have rounded up 20 of our favorite blogs that cater towards Baby Boomers and Caregivers. Here is our roundup of the Top 20 Baby Boomer Blogs of 2020. Hopefully you can find a new favorite blog to follow!

Honey Good

Susan Good, also known as Honey, created Honey Good to "empower visibility in women 50+".

Honey has been through many hardships and those hardships allow her to share and give honest and real advice.

Honey details her personal stories which allow you to feel connected to her and her other readers. Her site features these deep stories as well as fun articles about beauty & style, relationships, life and wisdom, and travel and entertainment. If you like personal stories mixed with relatable advice this is the blog to check out!

Many women have been feeling lonely and isolated so if you are in need of more connection Honey Good also has a private Facebook group called, that you can join to connect with a diverse group of women.

GRANDwomen with Moxie

Although Honey Good is geared towards women over 50, this Facebook group is open and welcoming to any woman no matter the age.

Photo credit to Megan Shuptar